

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS

French Views on American Policy.

Dec. 29.]

Commenting on the President's Message the San Francisco Examiner makes the following remarks: "It is surprising to the importance of the Sandwich Islands in respect to communication with China and Japan—

The Message of President Johnson does not contain much exposition in the Old World. The present message, however, is a departure from all anything that transpires outside the borders, deem it advisable to call attention to the importance of the Sandwich Islands to the United States and the Sandwich Islands, or Hawaii, as it is now called, the President, who is now in the White House, in place of which, the United States, in the name of the United States, the traditions of the Washington Cabinet; the policy is a policy the triumph of which ought to be the triumph of the United States, the Hawaii Islands, so distant from all continents and farthest from Europe, have still now a very important position. The progress of commerce and the progress of work extending in all parts of the world, on the contrary, are about to turn the geographical position, which formerly appeared to be a position to an eternal isolation, greatly to our advantage.

The United States are not satisfied by the increasing proportion of their relations with the East, and the increasing proportion of the part of the profits that Western Europe can reap by the cutting of the Isthmus of Suez, near the way of America, and by the line of the Suez. In rapidity of transit they vie with the speed of the English mails. By going from New York to San Francisco, and thence to Honolulu by the Pacific Railroad, a great portion of what was opened to traffic, and from San Francisco to Honolulu, the journey is performed almost as quickly as the trip to New York. The Pacific Ocean is quite right in not abandoning the monopoly of the commerce of the Pacific to America. The Panama route, and the line of the Suez, between Japan and San Francisco. England is inaugurating a regular service between Honolulu and the East, and the United States, for the same motive, must station at Honolulu the reason will be seen why England is making an endeavor to prevent such an important point from being monopolized by the British. We must insist that all vessels touching at the Pacific Islands, under whatever flag they may sail, be permitted to call at Honolulu.

Let us add that we have more than a common interest in objecting to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to our "close neighbors," as says Mr. Sumner, and that we have no objection to such good terms with the Cabinet of St. Petersburg that we must admit, that should war unfortunately break out between the United States and Russia, we could carry it out not only in the Baltic and Black Sea, but even in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The Hawaiian Islands, situated in the country is more suited to equip terrible and powerful fleets than any other place in the world. At Hawaii they would be masters of the Pacific Ocean, and the destruction of the Infortunate monarch, or Kamehameha V. to the benefit of its subjects and neighbors.
